Kleenex Boxes and Labeled DVDs

Epstein ordered hidden cameras in writing. His safe held DVDs organized by name. The DOJ has the receipts.

February 5, 2014. Jeffrey Epstein sent a one-line email to his logistics fixer:

■ “lets get three motion detected hidden cameras that record, thanks.”¹

Five hours later, the reply:

■ “I already two purchased the Motion sensor camera from the Spy Store in fort Lauderdale yesterday... its amazing how small they are, the size of Thumb nail drive, 64 hour recording, Motion sensor,. I’m installing them into Kleenex boxes now,. I’ll bring them by later today.”¹

Hidden cameras. Disguised in tissue boxes. Purchased from a spy store near Epstein’s Palm Beach estate. Motion-activated, 64 hours of recording capacity, installed the same afternoon.

This is not a rumor about hidden cameras. This is Epstein ordering them — in writing, in his own email, to his own employee. The employee confirming purchase and installation. Same day.

Now rewind eight years.

“IT Would Be Illegal”

In September 2006, Epstein was reviewing a draft letter that Alan Dershowitz’s office had prepared for his defense. The letter was meant to portray Epstein as a man with nothing to hide — a man who would welcome cameras if they existed.

Epstein struck one line and sent back a note:

■ “I would amend the place where it says he wishes I had cameras in the massage room... IT would be illegal...”²

He knew the law. Dershowitz’s team had written that Epstein “wished he had cameras in the massage room” — presumably to prove the massages were innocent. Epstein understood exactly why that line had to go. Recording people without consent in a private room is a felony in Florida.

He also thought the letter’s final paragraph was too soft. Jeffrey is a “good person”? No — “great friend, loyal, funny, generous, not GOOD.”

He wanted to sound generous. Not good. There’s a difference, and Epstein knew it.

Eight years later, he was buying hidden cameras from the Spy Store and having them installed inside Kleenex boxes.

DVDs from the Safe

The physical evidence goes deeper than cameras. Prosecution exhibit GX-332 from the Ghislaine Maxwell trial contains forensic metadata recovered from Epstein's personal safe:

File Name: virginia lsj.psd Location: Z:\Young\Maxwell\Epstein - DVDs from Safe\Brown Size: 11.8 MB Modified: *Tuesday, May 7, 2002*³

Read that folder path. Epstein - DVDs from Safe\textbackslash{}Brown. DVDs. From a safe. Organized in subfolders. The file name: “virginia lsj” — Virginia Roberts Giuffre and LSJ, Little Saint James. A Photoshop file. Modified in 2002. Recovered by federal forensic examiners during the Maxwell prosecution.

But the safe held more than one file. A separate prosecution evidence catalog — pages of forensic hashes, file paths, and folder names — reveals what else was inside:⁴

DVD Folder	Contents
Clinton St trp Morocco Nude Far East	Photos from trips
Clinton Far East 5.02	Additional photos
(GM topless)	Ghislaine Maxwell
(JR AND GM GO FOR A SWIM, FROM SAFE) NUDE	From the safe
(bathtub shoot)	Unnamed
Girl Pics Nude	Brown Bag subfolder
Misc Nudes	Brown Bag subfolder

“GM” is Ghislaine Maxwell. “Clinton” refers to trips to Morocco and the Far East. “FROM SAFE” — the catalog notes the provenance explicitly. These weren't on a laptop or a thumb drive. They were in a physical safe. Organized by name, by trip, by subject.

A filing system for blackmail material doesn't organize itself.

“All Made Up”

In January 2015, the Mirror UK published an article about hidden cameras allegedly installed in guest room walls at Epstein’s properties — specifically in connection with Prince Andrew. An associate named Nadia sent the article to Epstein:

■ “What hidden cameras in guest room walls?”⁵

Epstein’s reply:

■ “all made up. they just write what they want.”⁵

Nadia’s response:

■ “well, as long as they were not in the bathroom...”⁵

This exchange took place eleven months after Epstein ordered hidden cameras installed in Kleenex boxes. The man who purchased spy-store surveillance equipment was calling allegations about his surveillance equipment “all made up.”

Nadia’s reply reads like a joke. Whether she was kidding is a question the documents don’t answer.

“Videotaped Encounters”

A 2011 DOJ internal memo — marked “Highly Confidential” and titled “Preliminary Investigation of Additional Crimes of Jeffrey Epstein and Others” — confirms the system was exactly what the physical evidence suggests:

■ “Ms. [redacted] also reports that the encounters were videotaped by Epstein and, at the end of each encounter, Epstein would debrief Ms. [redacted] and take notes. These allegations are consistent with information received during our investigation that Epstein made his millions by getting dirt on important people and blackmailing them. Ms. [redacted] also reported that Epstein gave her Xanax to keep her emotionally malleable.”⁶

Videotaped encounters. Debriefings. Notes. Xanax for compliance. And the DOJ’s own characterization: consistent with information received during our investigation that Epstein made his millions by getting dirt on important people and blackmailing them.

That's not our assessment. That's the Department of Justice, in an internal memo, describing Epstein's business model.

The same memo names the people involved: Governor Bill Richardson, Prince Andrew, Alan Dershowitz, Senator George Mitchell, Israeli Prime Minister Ehud Barak, Les Wexner, Ghislaine Maxwell, Glenn Dubin, and "a Nobel Prize winning scientist from Harvard."⁶

The Timeline

Lay it flat:

2002 — A Photoshop file, "virginia lsj.psd," is modified and stored on a DVD in Epstein's personal safe.

2006 — Epstein reviews a defense letter. He strikes the line about cameras in the massage room because "IT would be illegal." He knows the law.

2011 — A DOJ memo confirms Epstein systematically videotaped encounters, debriefed victims afterward, and used Xanax to keep them compliant. The DOJ calls it "getting dirt on important people and blackmailing them."

2014 — Epstein orders three hidden cameras. His fixer buys them from the Spy Store in Fort Lauderdale. By that afternoon, they're installed inside Kleenex boxes.

2015 — Confronted with a news article about hidden cameras in his properties, Epstein calls it "all made up."

This is not a theory about a blackmail operation. This is a purchase order, a legal review, a DOJ assessment, and a forensic evidence catalog. The cameras were real. The DVDs were real. The safe was real. The filing system — organized by name, by trip, by subject — was real.

The man who struck "cameras in the massage room" from his own defense letter because it would be illegal was buying hidden cameras eight years later and installing them inside tissue boxes.
