The Speakerphone Call

An FBI document describes a sexual assault in progress. Donald Trump was on the line.

She was sixteen when they started sending cabs to pick her up.

An older woman made the introduction. The woman would bring younger girls to Jeffrey Epstein's Manhattan townhouse and collect a fee for the delivery. The FBI recorded all of this on July 15, 2020, in a standard FD-302 — the form the Bureau uses to memorialize witness interviews.<sup>1</sup>

The victim described a routine. An assistant named Lesley — known to law enforcement as Lesley Groff — would call from a 212 number. A massage was arranged. A cab arrived. And what happened inside that townhouse is what brings us to the most specific, most disturbing, and least discussed document linking Donald Trump to the Epstein operation.

The first two visits, the victim went with Epstein alone. During one of these, Epstein showed her a framed photograph:

█ EPSTEIN had a picture with a president, who [she] thought was BILL CLINTON. EPSTEIN asked her if she knew who that was in the picture. When [she] told him she did, EPSTEIN laughed.<sup>1</sup>

Then he took her upstairs.

This was Epstein's method — documented across dozens of victim accounts. The photo of a president, displayed prominently. The question: Do you know who that is? The laugh. It served a dual purpose: it impressed young girls with the scope of his power, and it normalized the idea that powerful men were part of his world. It was grooming dressed as small talk.

The Third Visit

The third time, the victim came with the older woman who had recruited her. The woman took them to an elevator. The victim described the layout in specific detail — a few steps up when entering the house, an elevator to the right, a hallway, the massage room with a bathroom featuring dark marble and bright lighting.

Epstein entered the massage room. His words, per the FD-302:

█ EPSTEIN came into the room and was like "let's go, let's go."<sup>1</sup>

He climbed onto the massage table. He was on a phone call.

█ EPSTEIN got on the massage table and was on a speakerphone call with DONALD TRUMP. [She] started getting undressed and they started massaging him... EPSTEIN grabbed [her] hand and it escalated to the point where EPSTEIN pulled [her] on top of him.<sup>1</sup>

Read that again. An FBI witness, under interview in a federal sex trafficking investigation, described being sexually assaulted by Jeffrey Epstein while Donald Trump's voice filled the room through a speakerphone.

The document does not say Trump knew what was happening on the other end of the line. It does not say he directed it or participated. It says he was there — audibly, unmistakably present — during a sexual assault on a minor.

What the Document Does Not Say

Precision matters here. The FD-302 records what the victim told the FBI. It is not a finding of fact, not a court ruling, not an indictment. The FBI agent who wrote it noted that “not all details were covered during the course of this interview” and that the victim “did not want to go into the specific details of the sexual encounters.”

The document does not allege: - That Trump knew a minor was present - That Trump heard or was aware of the assault - That Trump was a participant in any way - That Epstein informed Trump of what was occurring

What it does establish is that Epstein felt comfortable enough to sexually assault a teenage girl while on a speakerphone call with a man who would become President of the United States. That level of comfort — of brazenness — tells you something about how Epstein operated. His assaults were not furtive. They were woven into his daily business. A phone call here, a massage there, a sixteen-year-old between the two.

The Full Arc

The victim's story, taken in full, follows a pattern the FBI documented across hundreds of interviews.

She was modeling at sixteen when she met Epstein. She attended eight parties at his New York residence. At one party, she met three women in the “parlor room” — one of whom she recognized as Epstein's “British socialite.” That woman, the victim said, “would find young girls to have sex with Epstein.” The victim noted that “Epstein liked younger girls that were clean shaven with small breasts.”<sup>2</sup>

She returned to the townhouse multiple times between the ages of sixteen and nineteen. When she came alone, Epstein paid her directly. When she came with the older woman, the money went through the recruiter — who, the victim noted, would “sometimes short change the girls she brought.”

The scheduling was handled by Groff. Always a 212 number. The victim recalled seeing “a lot of girls working in his office.”

The Breaking Point

Eventually, Epstein wanted the victim to recruit other girls. She went to his office, approximately nineteen years old by then, and told him she wanted a real job.

█ EPSTEIN grabbed [her] breasts, gave her $100, and told her to bring him girls and that’s how she could make money.<sup>1</sup>

She was upset. She left the $100 on the table and walked out. That was the last time she saw Epstein. One of his assistants called afterward. She ignored it.

That moment — leaving the money on the table — is the kind of detail that doesn’t get invented in a witness interview. It’s too specific, too human, too full of the particular shame and defiance of someone who spent years in a situation she didn’t fully understand until it was too late.

Where This Fits

The FBI’s internal case index, circulated on July 22, 2025, summarizes the Bureau’s findings on Trump in one parenthetical:

█ Donald Trump (one identified victim claimed abuse by Trump but ultimately refused to cooperate)<sup>3</sup>

The speakerphone victim is not that victim. The FD-302 does not describe Trump committing abuse — it describes Trump on a phone call during Epstein’s abuse. These are different evidentiary categories. The FBI’s “one identified victim” who “claimed abuse by Trump” came through a separate channel — the National Threat Operations Center crisis intake on August 8, 2019 — and that caller alleged “big orgy parties” with Trump and Clinton on Epstein’s island.<sup>2</sup> She refused to cooperate further.

Virginia Giuffre — the most prominent and most cooperative Epstein victim — said something different entirely:

“Donald Trump was also a good friend of Jeffrey’s. He didn’t partake in sex with any of us but he flirted with me.”<sup>4</sup>

So the documents give us three data points on Trump: a victim who made an allegation and vanished; a victim who was assaulted while Trump was on the phone; and the most credible victim in the case, who cleared him.

Hold all three at the same time. That’s what the evidence requires.

The Question Nobody’s Asking

The internet has spent years arguing about whether Trump went to the island. The flight logs. The photos. The party footage from the 1990s. All of that is noise compared to a three-page FBI document sitting in plain sight on justice.gov.

A sixteen-year-old girl was sexually assaulted in a massage room while the voice of Donald Trump came through a speakerphone. That is what FD-302 number EFTA01246244 says. Not more. Not less.

Whether Trump knew what was happening — whether a speakerphone call in a townhouse constitutes awareness, proximity, or nothing at all — is a question for prosecutors, not pundits. The FBI built a derogatory file on him.<sup>5</sup> They listed him first.

What they did with it is a different article.
